Ernst Asks a Talk With Mayor

George A. O. Ernst, chief of the new Bureau of Municipal Research, whose appointment Mayor Fitzgerald recently criticized, today addressed a letter to the Mayor asking an interview. Ernst says that he tried to get into communication with him through his secretary on Friday afternoon, and he was rebuffed. He now requests for an audience. His letter follows:

"In order that I might get your suggestions and secure your friendly cooperation in the work I have undertaken as the Finance Commissioner, I telephoned your office early last Friday morning asking for an interview. I was informed by your secretary that your engagement was such that you could not see me. I asked him to give you my message and say that I would call upon you at any time you might designate."

Previous Personal Interview.

"I thought that a personal interview would be productive of better results than a letter. I have received no message from you, although I have had my self in readiness to call at any time. I will kindly give me an appointment."

In a communication to Mr. Fitzgerald today the Finance Commissioner stated that his secretary was intended in his failure to notify him of the appointment of Mr. Ernst. The investigating body had been notified of the appointment of Mr. Ernst, and the Finance Commissioner had been notified of the appointment of Mr. Ernst.

Previous Custom is Cited.

"During the former year the present Finance Commission had said that the Mayor would, either to be consulted as to appointments to be made by the Finance Commission, or give any notice of such appointments when made, under the notice that is received as a result of the filing of appointments in the City Clerk's office."

The Commission believes that in Mr. Ernst and Mr. Ernst, the two men who are the most valuable men have been secured. In the opinion of the Commission, they are excellently qualified by education, training and experience to perform successfully the tasks which are before them, and that integrity, industry and unswerving loyalty to the city may be depended upon.

One rumor that at a conference between J. P. Morgan and the Kuhn, Loeb company, Mr. Morgan agreed to support Steel & Kuhn, Loeb & Co. would support Union Pacific.

It is not to be supposed that the big banking interests would countenance a further advance in price, but there are indications that they would not resist a continuation of gradual and orderly fluctuations.

Important financial interests, without exception, are looking for a steady advance in price, but there are indications that they would not resist a continuation of gradual and orderly fluctuations.

The Steel Corporation, as well as several other large corporations, are looking for a steady advance in price, but there are indications that they would not resist a continuation of gradual and orderly fluctuations.
